Deane Named
To New Post
At Bank Here

Boushall's Aide Is Arlington Man

By Bill Robbins

Frederick Deane, Jr., of Arlington, a former assistant deputy director of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), has been named assistant to the president of The Bank of Virginia.

Thomas C. Boushall, bank president, in announcing the appointment yesterday, said Deane will come here to begin his new assignment August 3.

In assuming the post, a new one at The Bank of Virginia, Deane will become a special aide to the president, Boushall said.

Deane is a native of Boston and a graduate of Harvard University and the university's graduate school of business administration. He had summer experience in banking during college, including work with Merchants National Bank of Boston, and National Bank of Wareham, Mass.

A first lieutenant in the Army during World War II, he served as an assistant finance officer and deputy disbursing officer. He was recalled to duty in 1951 and was assigned to the CIA, remaining with the agency as assistant to a deputy director after his discharge last January.
